

Unit – IV

2 Mark Questions

1. What are the points to be remember while writing a letter? (OR) what are the steps involved in writing an application letter? (Nov 18)

- Your letter of application is the employee's first introduction of you. Think carefully about how you want to present yourself.
- Address the letter to a specific person.
- Begin your letter by starting what position you're applying for and what experience, if any, you have had.
- Remember the purpose of the application letter is not to tell the whole story of your work history but only to convince the employer to grant you an interview. The interview is the time to discuss skill and experiences in more detail.

2. Define a resume. (April 17)

A resume is a selective record of an individual's background. It is basically a professional employment seeking document that presents a summary of an individual's education, professional training, experience, skill, abilities, achievement and references. The main objective of a resume is winning a job interview by highlighting the applicant's fitness for a particular position.

3. What are the types of resume?

Chronological, functional and combination, chronological is the most common resume consisting of education and experience. Functional highlights on accomplishments and skills. Combination is a mixed one of chronological and functional resume.

4. Define a memo. (April 18)

It is a short piece of writing generally used by the officers of an organization for communicating among them. It is also called interoffice memorandum. A business memo is a formal written message, written in a conventional form for someone within the organization to meet a specific need.

5. What are the characteristics of an effective memo? (April 16)

Four characteristics distinguish an effective memo.

Clarity: A memo must be clearly written, because an unclear or vague memo will confuse the reader, leading to delay and inaction.

Conciseness: Unnecessary explanations, repetitions, wordy expressions and exaggerations must be avoided.

Unity of theme: An important way of ensuring a unity in a memo is to make sure that it deals with only one topic.

Informal tone: Although a memo is a formal business document the tone is usually informal and conversational because a very formal tone might sound intimidating.

6. What are reports? (April 17, April 19)

A report is factual and systematic account of a specific business or professional activity. Report may vary from a one-page informal trip report a 250 page formal annual report of an organization. Reports can be formal or informal depending on their nature, scope and length. A formal report is usually the result of a thorough investigation of a problem, condition or situation. They usually follow a fixed format. A non-formal report could be a brief account of a specific business or professional activity.

7. What are salutations in letters? Give an example of different types of salutation. (April 10)

Salutation is a formal way of accosting or wishing the recipient of the letter. 'Respected sir', 'sir/madam', 'Dear sir' are the salutations for official letters. 'Hai', 'My dear', 'Dear' are the salutations for personal or informal letter.

8. Define a business letter.

A business letter is a formal written message, written in a conventional form for a specific audience to meet a specific need. It is also a form of dialogue, where the writer wants to say something and expects a response to the message. However

9. How to write an instruction?

Instruction should be reasonably plain and straight forward and reader should find no difficulty in understanding them. Engineers are expected to be familiar with the art of writing instruction. As engineer, you may have to write a set of instruction for installing a software programs or assembling a piece of equipment or using an engineering product. Engineers who work in a laboratory should know the safety rules which they should be able to write it in the form of instructions.

10. What are notices? (Nov 16)

We can see notices everywhere around us the office entrance, in the supermarkets, at the railway station and at the bus stop. The organizations have separate notice boards. Notices can serve a no of purposes in an office.

- Reports on matters of importance to staff.
- Advt. post for internal appointment.
- Inform staff on new procedures and rules.
- Convey growth and development of the company.
- Announce social programs.

11.Difference between formal and informal letter. (April 16)

A personal letter is an informal letter in the form of private dialogue, where the writer wants to say something and expects a response to the message. It may follow the norms of private conversation but it normally does not follow any set pattern that suits his/her word and content. Thus, personal letters are varied in their language, style, tone, presentation and content.

A formal letter on the other hand, is a formal written message, written in conventional form for a specific audience to meet a specific need. It is also in the form of dialogue, where the writer wants to say something and expects a response to the message. However, it is more structured as it follows a set pattern form and style.

12.What are the characteristics of an instruction? (Nov 19)

Instruction should be reasonably plain and straight forward and reader should find no difficulty in understanding them. Engineers are expected to be familiar with the art of writing instruction. As engineer, you may have to write a set of instructions for installing a software programs or assembling a piece of equipment or using an engineering product. Engineers who work in a laboratory should know the safety rules which they should be able to write in the form of instructions.

13.Explain the functional report.

Functional reports are categorized into Informational reports and Analytical reports.

Informational Reports: Informational reports presents facts of a case, problem, condition, or situation without any analysis, interpretations, or recommendations.

Example: conference reports, seminar reports and trip reports.

Analytical reports: Analytical report presents data with interpretations and analysis.

Example: Project reports, feasibility reports, and market research reports.

5 or 6 Mark Questions

1. Write a short note on oral and written reports. (Nov 16)

Communicative forms of reports are divided into oral and written reports.

Oral Reports: Oral reports are an informal and face to face presentation of information.

Example: Accident reports, sales report, joining report, and conference reports.

Written Reports: Written reports are more conventional than oral reports. It is more formal and can be referred for future reference.

Example: Project reports, progress reports, and Research reports.

Formats of Reports

The four common formats of report are printed format, letter format, memo format, and manuscript format.

Printed format: Forms are prepared to record for repetitive and routine data.

Letter format: Short informal reports to be communicated to someone outside an organization.

Memo format: Short informal reports to be communicated to someone with an organization.

Manuscript format: formal reports printed on the plain paper.

2. Write any eight instructions to be followed in the chemistry engineering laboratory. (April 17)

- Pipette carefully.
- Read the Chemical Safety Information.
- Dress appropriately (to chemistry lab, not fashion or the weather)
- Identify the safety equipment.
- Avoid taste or sniff sniff any chemicals.
- Never dispose of chemicals down the drain.
- Avoid eating or drinking inside the lab.
- Never play the role of mad scientist in lab.

3. What are the parts of the resume? Explain Parts of a Resume (Nov 16, April 17)

A resume contains the heading, position sought, career objectives, education, work experience, specific skills, achievements, activities , interests and references.

Heading

It contains contact information of the employee or applicant.

Position sought

For a solicited job position, it can be mentioned but it's not necessary to include this heading for an unsolicited job position.

Career Objective

Career objective is a special part in a resume. It should convey, his/her motivational and interest in the job he/she is seeking.

Professional Summary

It's a one-sentence statement listing the applicant's most important qualification.

Education

Reverse chronological order is used to list the educational information that is, starting from the most recent educational information (In detail).

Work Experience

Should be given in reverse chronological order, by listing the most recent employment first.

Special Skills, Abilities and Aptitudes

E.g. of learned skills i.e. Computer programming, computer processing etc.

Activities and Interests

Extra-curricular, co-curricular, professional activities, hobbies and interests must be mentioned.

Achievements/ Accomplishments/ Honors:

This part includes scholarship, fellowships, awards, distinctions, commendations, certificates or anything that shows achievement or recognition.

References:

Some employers need references from persons who know the applicants work or professional competence. These persons may include the applicant's previous employee, teacher, immediate supervisor, research guide and so on. The name of the person of reference with address should be mentioned, his or her designation with full address and phone number.

Straight 11 Mark Question

1. Write a letter of application with CV for the post of Assistant Professor of Mechanical Engineering to the reputed Engineering College. (April 17)
2. Most of the Indian rivers are polluted. Write a letter to the editor of a newspaper highlighting this problem and suggesting some ideas for maintaining these water resources. (April 16)

3. Write a set of eight instructions that are to be followed during natural calamity (APRIL 16)

4. Draft the memo for the following context. (April 18)

Various universities in India offer their academic programmes through distance learning mode of education. A large number of junior officers of a company have sought permission to improve their educational qualifications through these programmes. As the manager of Personal Department of this company, write a memo to be sent to all Junior Officers spelling out (a) the company's policy in this regard (b) the deadline for submitting their applications. You can also assure them that a decision would soon be taken and communicated to the applicants

5. Define a report. Elucidate on 'the functions, forms and writing strategies of reports. (Nov16)

6. Draft a job application along with your resume to be sent to one of the leading companies in your field of study. Assume other necessary details. (Nov 16)

7. Write a job application letter in response to the advertisement given below that appeared in Times Of India on Sept. 1st, 2017: (Nov 18)

“Service Engineer positions available at Techson Automated Machines Ltd., No. 12/55 Chembur, Mumbai, Maharashtra. Potential candidate should be automobile/mechanical engineering graduates, preferably with at least 2 years experience. Along with good communication skills in English, knowledge of Marathi and Hindi will be an added advantage.

8. Prepare a resume to the above advertisement to be attached with the job application letter. (Nov 18)

9. Write any eight instructions to be followed in the college library. (Jan 15)

10. Discuss in detail the structure and formats of reports. (Nov 16)